Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 3-5 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by JP 58-60977 (hereinafter '977, cited in the IDS).

Regarding claim 3, '977 discloses an electronic equipment (see figure 1), comprising: a double length case (see figure 1) having an overall length substantially twice as long as a predetermined length in a predetermined direction (see figure 1), in which said double length case (see figure 1) includes a common case member (1) shorter in overall length in said predetermined direction than said length and available for a part of a length case, having in said predetermined direction an overall length identical to said standard length (see figure 1), and an additional case member longer in overall length in said predetermined direction than said length case (see figure 1) and disposed on a predetermined side of said common case member (1), said common case member (1) having a common side engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said additional case member (1), and said additional case member (see figure 1) having an additional side engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said common side engaging portion of said common case member (see figure 1); a front panel (20) disposed on the front side of said double length case (see figure 1); a connecting member (not shown, see figure 1) for fixedly connecting said common case member (1) and said additional case member to each other (see figure 1); a common side tightening member operable to tighten and fixedly connect said connecting member with said common case member (see figure 1); and an additional side tightening member operable to tighten and fixedly connect said connecting member with said additional case member (see figure 1), said connecting member being disposed on one or the other side in a direction in which said common case member and said front panel are arranged (see figure 1).

Regarding claim 4, '977 discloses an electronic equipment (see figure 1), comprising: a double length case (see figure 1) having an overall length substantially twice as long as a predetermined length (see figure 1) in a predetermined direction, in which said double length case (see figure 1) includes a common case member (1) shorter in overall length in said predetermined direction than said length and available for a part of a length case (see figure 1), having in said predetermined direction an overall length identical to said length, and an additional case member (see figure 1) longer in overall length in said predetermined direction than said length case and disposed on a predetermined side of said common case member (see figure 1), said common case member having a common side engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said additional case member (see figure 1), and said additional case member having an additional side engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said common side engaging portion of said common case member (see figure 1); a common side electronic part housed in said common case member; an additional side electronic part housed in said additional case member to be independent from said additional case member (see figure 1); and a harness cable (see figure 3) having said common side electronic part and said additional side electronic part connected to each other (see figure 1).

Regarding claim 5, '977 discloses an electronic equipment (see figure 1), in which said additional case member (see figure 1) is formed with a passage hole (9) having said harness cable passed therethrough to connect said common side electronic part and said additional side electronic part (see figures 3-5).

Regarding claim 7, '977 discloses an electronic equipment (see figure 1), in which said double length case (see figure 1) includes a cover member (see figure 1) disposed on the opposite side of said additional case member as against said common case member, said additional case member (see figure 1) having for covering use a cover engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said cover member (see figure 1), and said cover member having a cover side engaging portion held in fitting engagement with said engaging portion of said additional case member, said cover side engaging portion and said common side engaging portion being engageable with each other (see figure 1).
